

Discouraged at Our Own Hearts

David Wilkerson (1931-2011) November 14, 2019

Are you tired of living in need when everything you will ever require has been provided? Perhaps your focus is wrong. You tend to dwell on your weaknesses, temptations and past failures — and when you look inside your own heart, what you see discourages you.

God's love insists that we stop focusing on our failures and sins and, instead, focus on the riches offered to us in Christ. You are to be looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of your faith (see Hebrews 12:2). When Satan comes and points out weakness in your heart, you have every right to answer, "My God already knows it all and he still loves me! He has given me everything I need to get victory and keep it. As far as he is concerned, it is finished!"

God is urging you, "Come boldly to the throne of grace, that [you] may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need" (Hebrews 4:16). Remind God that it was his idea for you to come to him. Take God at his Word and say in faith, "Lord Jesus, flood me with your peace because you have said it is mine. I claim rest for my soul."

You can't work this up in you. You can't sing or praise it down on you. No, it comes from being rooted and grounded in a revelation of God's love for you. This does not come in a feeling but rather in the Word that he himself has spoken: "In my house is bread and enough to spare" (Luke 15:17).

If you ask the Holy Spirit right now to help you seize this truth — to get rooted and grounded in it — the coming days will be the greatest you have ever had. You can go to your loving Father and claim all that is yours!
